CABIN LOVE SONG.

Oh, listen to me, darkies,
I'll tell you a little story;
'Tis all about my true love,
De Flat Creek mornin'-glory;
She's nice as any jew-drap
Inside de open flower;
She's sofer dan de moonshine,
An' I lubs her eb'ry hour!

CHORUS—Mag is a sunflower,
Mag is a daisy;
Mag is de very gal
Torun a nigger crazy!

Her head is like de full moon,
Her lip is sweet as a cherry;
Her furrud's smooov as a lookin'-glass
An' slick as a huckleberry;
Her tee is like a picter,
Her face is white an' pearly;
Her eye is bright as a lightnin'-bug,
An' her ha'r is 'mazin' curly.

I like to chop de 'backer patch
Wid Mag right close behind me;
I'd like to be a 'backer-wum
Ef Mag would only find me;
I'd like to be a flock o' sheep
Ef Meg would dribe me 'bout;
I'd like to be a 'tater-slip
Ef Meg would set me out!

I seed her for de rus' time
In thinnin' out de corn;
She made my feelin' flutterate,
An' now my heart is gone;
Oh, I lubs her like de mischuf,
I's bound to tell her soon,
An' I'll cote her at de shuckin'
On de changin' ob de moon!

Saghalien Instead of Siberia.

The Novoe Vremya, which is usually well informed in administrative matters, states in a leading article that the Russian Government is actively engaged discussing a project for abolishing exile to Siberia. This may seem an untrustworthy rumor to persons unacquainted with Russian progress, but it is, in effect, altogether in harmony with the tendency both of the Russian Government and people to give over treating Siberia as a huge Botany Bay, and make use of it as a colonial adjunct, like Canada or Australia. Of course a place must still be found for the 30,000 exiles who are deported from European Russia every year, and here the recent annexation of Saghalien comes in handy to play in the North Pacific the role that New Caledonia plays in behalf of the French in the South Pacific Ocean. Should the island become over-crowded, as it would very likely be in course of time, unless the stream of exiles diminished, a second penal settlement could be formed in the inhospitable wilds of Novoe Zemlia, where a Russian geographer has recently demonstrated the winters to be not so bad as usually represented. Whether this be so or not, or whether Novoe Zemlia will ever succeed Saghalien, it seems to be tolerably certain that before long the indiscriminate distribution of exiles over the length and breadth of Siberia will undergo a thorough overhauling. At present, exiles are shot over the Urals into Asia in a most promiscuous manner, scarcely a third remaining in the districts assigned to them, and a large proportion wandering about the country like vagrants. In a word, in most essentials the deportation of non-political convicts is simply a sort of enforced colonization, with a sufficient grant from the State to keep the exiles from actual starvation. This intrusion of a needy criminal element has always been a grievance to the regular Siberians, and has been unanimously regarded by Russian statesmen as the principal cause of the stunted growth of the country during its 300 years' existence under Russian rule. Now that the European railway system penetrates beyond the Urals, and the province of Tobolsk has been placed on the same home administrative footing as St. Petersburg or Moscow, the deportation of exiles, to Western Siberia at least, has become an anomaly; and of the two they would be kept in hand better in the Island Saghalien than in the eastern section of that great appanage of the Russian Empire.—London Globe.

A Ludicrous Stage Death-Scene.

Camille died last night at the Chestnut Street Opera-house, not only to slow music but to the unrestrained laughter of the audience as well. The death scene was marred by a most ludicrous accident. When the curtain arose for the last act, with Camille discovered lying on a couch partly covered by a furry robe, and the dews of death already gathering on her brow, the house was still and expectant. After leaving the death-chamber Gaston re-entered, and the dying woman raised herself to greet him. At that moment there was an ominous creak, and one of the supports of the couch gave way. The actress seemed to grasp the situation instantly, and attempted to conceal the difficulty by heaving a long-drawn sigh, and throwing herself back, but the action only made matters worse. The death-bed gave way at one corner with a crash, and the audience began to titter. Nichette, the maid, entered at this juncture and kneeling in front of her mistress began her part, but the couch giving evidence by numerous groans of its instability, she arose and wheeled a chair up for the dying Camille's accommodation. By this time the audience had fully appreciated the funniness of the situation and were laughing very audibly, but when Gaston approached, and he, together with the maid and the dying woman, could not control their countenances, the audience fairly roared. Camille, after dying in Armand's arms, was deposited in the easy chair instead of on the couch, and appeared as a very smiling corpse.—Philadelphia Press.

Saxon Houses and Tenements.

As the halls and stairways are used in common by the entire community of the house, of course no carpetings are laid upon them. In the higher class of houses, and in the villas of the wealthy, the hallways are laid with squares of marble and granite, of different colors, and the steps are built usually of one or the other of these stones. But in the tenements of the working people only common flag-stones are used, and these are so soft that it requires only a few years to wear them in the middle of the steps until they are sometimes scarcely a half-inch thick.

On entering one of these large houses the first impression is unfavorable, everything appearing so dreary, so lonely and so desolate. The wide stone stairway, the broad corridors and the bare walls have nothing about them to remind you that you are in a dwelling-house. All the doors leading to the corridors and landings are closed and generally locked, for they have a species of sneak-thief in Saxony fully as expert and fully as accomplished in the art of noiselessly removing portable property as his American brethren. The ground floor is sometimes occupied by a barber, a toy-dealer, a "buch-handler," or a baker. Whether it is so occupied or not, it is not popular for residence purposes. The second story is the most sought after, and its apartments or tenements command the highest rent.

It is not an unusual thing to find people of the best society occupying the second floor; people of less importance socially, but nevertheless respectable, occupying the third floor; people still lower down in the social scale being on the fourth floor, and working people of the third degree living on the fifth floor. Thus you may find in one house a merchant and his family, a factory superintendent and his family, a mechanic and his family, and a laborer and his family. The poorer he is the more steps he must climb, unless he is a small tradesman and rents a couple of rooms on the ground floor.—Chemnitz Cor. Chicago News.

Notice.

The Democratic Executive Committee will meet at my office in Maysville on Saturday, October 7th, at 10 o'clock, a. m. Business of importance. A full attendance is required. GARRETT S. WALL,

Chairman Dem. Ex. Committee.

THE famous Morey letter, it is now known, was the work of H. H. Hadley, a renegade Republican.

JAMES W. JOHNSON, who is not entirely unknown to fame, has been elected School Commissioner of Rowan county.

THE amount of the debt reduction for the month of September is $15,000,000, which is smaller than predicted.

THE Kentucky classical and business college, at North Middletown, suspended recently with about $25,000 in debts hanging over it.

It is considered very certain at Washington that little or nothing will ever come of the prosecution of the persons who bribed the Star Route jury.

THE unpaid fines on the docket book at Mt. Sterling, amount to $7,000. A "readjustment" might be made there to the satisfaction of some people.

THE south does not grow enough provisions for home use, and has already drawn on the North this season for wheat to the value of $55,000,000; corn, $50,000,000, and provisions, $72,000,000.

OHIO produces uponwards of 25,000,000 pounds of wool, or nearly one-sixth of the whole product of the United States. California follows next with 16,798,039 pounds and Michigan third with 11,858,497 pounds.

THE citizens of Baltimore contemplate an attempt to duplicate the Cincinnati Exposition next year. We suggest to the Baltimoreans that some of Cincinnati's enterprises are rather difficult of duplication.

It is said that about fifty thousand dollars of the money squeezed out of government office holders, by Jay Hubbell, has been sent to aid the Mahone movement in Virginia. Other districts where the Republicans need the sinews of war, are sending up curses loud and deep, in consequence.

If all reports be true, the Republicans will meet with a "Waterloo" next Tuesday, in Ohio. The temperance "order" of Governor Foster seems to have driven the German vote over to the Democrats, and now, it is reported that a large number of the prominent colored men of Cincinnati have given the "grand old party" the "grand bounce."

A CONFERENCE of Administration Republicans was held at New York this week to decide whether or not the ticket nominated at the Saratoga convention should be withdrawn and a new convention called. It was decided that fraud and forgery should be gulped down and the ticket kept in the field. Folger has accepted the nomination for Governor and entreats the party in the state to join hands and help him out of his uncomfortable place. He has a rough road ahead of him.

Jerome Stewart, admitted to the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania, last Monday, was arrested Tuesday, charged with being concerned in the robbery of the book and stationery store of J. V. Stout, Jacksonville, Ill., last July. He denied he had been concerned in the robbery, but stated that, although he knew of the affair, he had not left Jacksonville until last month. He is held for the action of Illinois authorities.

THERE are fifty-five cases of small-pox at Newport.

MASON, SHANAHAN & Co., this week, took charge of the Kentucky penitentiary.

A LITTLE son of Mr. Thornton Snelling was fatally scalded at Owingsville, on Monday.

THE negro boy, Hathaway, who was shot during a dance at Carlisle, last week, died on Monday.

GUS. JONES, a painter, aged fifty years, committed suicide at Lexington on Tuesday, by taking morphine.

AFTER January 1st it will be a finale offense to expose cattle for sale on any of the streets of Lexington.

THE work of putting up the new bridge will begin to-morrow. The framing of the timber to be used is finished.

CHARLES DINGER, who is charged with an assault upon Wm. Slack was arrested last night by Deputy Marshal Dawson.

THE attendance at the Cincinnati Exposition, Tuesday, numbered 17,480; on the same day last year the attendance was 10,354.

JOSEPH COLE, of Mayslick, while at work one day this week, at Flemingsburg, shingling a roof, fell from the building and broke his thigh.

MRS. ELLEN PATTON, formerly Miss Ellen Burr, of Paris, has filed a suit asking a divorce and $5,000 alimony from her husband, Henry T. Patton, a merchant of that city.

JOHN BROWN, who was arrested recently by Sheriff Wilson, of Lewis county, on the charge of having robbed Baird's store at Vanceburg, was acquitted at his examining trial.

JACOB SPEIGLE, who has been for several months past engaged in the confectionery business at Aberdeen, has gone to parts unknown, leaving behind him a number of anxious creditors.

THE Carlisle Mercury in noticing the death of Mr. E. H. Poynter says:

"E. H. Poynter, who is among the missing, was a partner in the plow manufacturing firm of Cox & Poynter, in this city. He was born near Mt. Sterling, Ky., where his father still lives, but has spent the greater portion of his life in Maysville. He was a bachelor, about forty-two years of age, and one of the most highly respected citizens, having lived the life of an honorable, upright gentleman."

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Peyton Stout, formerly of Lewis county, is now living in Mexico.

James Jordan, son of G. W. Jordan, of Tollesboro, broke his leg recently, by falling from a fence.

Mr. Hiram Duley, editor of the Flemingsburg Times, we regret to learn, was stricken down by paralysis last Saturday.

Mr. Henry Green, one of the Kentucky Central's most obliging and popular conductors, is off on a holiday, his first for several years. He will visit Newport News and other southern points before he returns.

MR. WM. CHAMBERS, whose illness we have noticed, died yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, at the residence of Dr. John Shackelford on Third street. Mr. Chambers was a native of Mason county, but had lived for many years at New Orleans, where he had important business interests. He came here several weeks ago to visit his sister, Mrs. Dr. John Shackelford, and other relatives in the county, and was on Thursday last attacked by the disease which caused his death. He had many friendships among our older citizens, who will learn with the sincerest regret of his demise. The funeral will take place this afternoon at half-past three o'clock from the residence of Dr. Shackelford, after services by Rev. S. B. Alderson, of the Presbyterian church.

"WEST END" NOTES.

Robert Frost talk of starting a grocery. Mrs. Ella Pearce and children are visiting relatives near Hillsboro.

Mr. John Clare, of Cincinnati, is at home on a furlough.

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald, who has been visiting his parents in this place, has returned home.

Mr. A. W. Bettys, a tobacco raiser of Bourbon county, paid a flying visit to friends here last week. Come again Captain.

Mr. Chas. Wormald, of Newport, who has been visiting his brother's family, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Neal, of Nebraska, are visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. B. Ughner, in this place.

The majority of the people in this part of town pronounce the BULLETIN the best paper printed in the city, and so does

KATHARINE MEES.

THE Western Tobacco Journal offers this good advice: Judging by the character of a great deal of the tobacco offered for sale in our market, it is our belief that more harm is done to the crop from inattention and ignorance after the crop is housed than when in the field. Repeatedly can be seen packages of tobacco which show good form and good texture, and which, if proper attention was paid to it after being cut, would rank among the fine grades of tobacco, but which, in the process of curing and handling, suffered irretrievable damage, and unfitted it for any use but that for which the common grades are employed. Intelligence and diligence are as requisite in the curing and handling of tobacco as in culture, and all those comprehending and respecting this profit greatly, while those not heeding the admonition of common sense and reason barely make a living, and find life uphill work. Labor and time bestowed on your crops in the barn are not wasted but prove effective and are substantially rewarded.

COUNTY POINTS.

TWO LICK

Tobacco cutting is about over. Cutting corn and seeding is the order of the day.

Charles Jones is in Nicholas county, this week. He contemplates moving there in the spring.

It pays to advertise, so, thinks our young friend Mr. Thomas A. Woodward, who lost $25 in Maysville, a short time since, and recovered the money by using the columns of the DAILY BULLETIN.

"He committed suicide" has become a common expression. Our community was quite excited last week by the death of Jerome Wood, by his own hands. He was a clever young gentleman and had many friends to mourn his untimely departure. What prompted him to commit this rash act we know not.

H.W.G.

The State of Lewis at Large.

A. H. Hatcher, Esq., bachelor merchant of Connersville, Ind., is visiting friend in Lewis with a view of selecting a permanent house-keeper.

The continued irregularity of the river mail is a just cause of complaint. The commercial interest of the valley is jeopardized by the mail contractors.

Col. Smith Hunt has mixed with some effect in the State of Lewis. No better material for Congress in Kentucky.

L. S. Baird's store was robbed and burned 30th December 1881, with a loss of $5,000. No clue to the guilt of any one could be had until recently John Brown, Eligah Boyd and Tom Mitchell colored squealed on each other to the extent to justify the arrest of these parties a court of inquiry are now instigating their mysterious loss.

Elder Myers is holding a successful protracted meeting in the Christian Church at Vanceburg.

Rev. E. C. Pollard whose work in Vanceburg has given him deserving name and fame, leaves with our regrets for Germantown, Mason county. The Germantown charge is in able hands for industry, zeal and untiring work in building the masters mansions. E. C. Pollard and his devoted wife work as one in one inspired way his wonders to perform. There are many ways to achieve success Mr. and Mrs. Pollard have them. Give them a christian welcome and you will have a christian reward sumbling blocks Pharisees and self appointed saints obstructed his pathway yet the hallow of victory remains to his credit for all time.

The Lewis County School Institute is in session presenting a creditable show of intelligence well dressed and refined teachers. But it is amazing at the reluctance they attend complaint and exceptions to attending the Institute when a child can learn and the wise be benefited at these gatherings.

The boss corn grower L. B. Baerd near Vanceburg has sent in specimen corn, that measures eleven inches in length nine inches in circumference containing one thousand three hundred and fifty grains. Mr. Baird informs me he has sent a selection to contest for the silver plate at Cincinnati Exposition and he has a ten acre field of this grain for inspection. Now let Craddock come to the front.

Says the Carlisle Mercury:

John Hughes, a young man living at Mr. Jesse Fishback's at the old Fishback ford between Bourbon and Nicholas counties, was taken with small-pox last Friday. He contracted the disease while in Cincinnati, and was sick several days before the true cause was known, hence there is great danger of several other cases following.

A Bengal Tiger in a Cornfield.

A dispatch from Lancaster, Ky., says: The first railroad disaster of any importance on this branch of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad happened this morning about half-past three o'clock. As the first of three special trains conveying the Sells Bros.' Circus from Richmond was coming around a curve near Point Lick Depot, in this county the fourth car from the engine for some unknown cause, jumped the track and rolled down a fifteen foot embankment. The whole of the remaining cars of that train followed, consisting of eighteen cars. The cars were loaded principally with baggage of the company, the tableau wagon, electric light machine, and a cage containing a Bengal tiger. A number of the attaches of the circus were scattered along on the train asleep under the wagons on the flat cars.

The destruction of both life and property was fearful. Three men were instantly killed and one died since. Three fatally injured, and eight or ten others are wounded in various ways. The cage containing the tiger was a complete wreck. The tiger was not injured, but escaped and wandered about in the corn fields for several hours, much to the discomfort of the citizens. He was finally caught and confined in the cage which was repaired with ropes and planks. The electric light machine and tableau wagon were completely destroyed. The track was torn up for over one hundred yards, and the cars piled into a confused mass upon each other, some of the cars catching the unfortunate men under them, and crushing them until life was almost extinct.

The engine with the three front cars escaped uninjured, and were sent to Lancaster for coffins and surgeons. Drs. Hauffman and Kinwird returned on the engine, arriving on the scene about six o'clock. A wrecking train from Louisville, with Dr. George W. Griffith on board, arrived about twelve o'clock and took charge of matters, and had all the wounded well cared for. A force of men was immediately set to work, and at five o'clock this evening the track was cleared, but Mr. Sells declines to go on to London to fill his engagement there to-morrow. The circus will camp at Silver Creek to-night and go to Lebanon to-morrow to fill their engagement for Tuesday.

The exact cause of the accident is not known, there being several reports, such as the coupling of one of the cars broke and one that the ties on the road were rotten, and that the heavily loaded cars pressing on the rails cut them in two. An official investigation will be necessary to arrive at the truth.

A Kentucky Hero.

From the Frankfort Yeoman.

Jno. Stout becomes the real of Jno. Hay's character, "Jim Bludso." That graphic description of a hero at the wheel could not have been more justly applied had it been written to follow the destruction of the Robert E. Lee. The noble conduct of Stout at that terrible moment is worthy to live in poetry of a higher order, but it is doubtful whether any inspiration could perpetuate the incident more truly than Mr. Hay has done.

The Lee was heavily laden with cotton, the most inflammable of all material, usually carried in quantity upon the water. The fire was communicated from the cook house, and in five minutes it had spread to all parts of the boat, and the whole lower deck was a sheet of flame. John Stout must have realized the danger of his place, and when with firm hand he turned the wheel and held it shoreward, he performed an act of heroism that no pretic fancy can overestimate. His chances for escape were less than those of any other person, and life was doubtless as sweet to him as it was to any other; but with unshrinking courage he remained at his post and said to himself, like Jim Bludsoe:

"I'll hold her nozzle again the bank
Till the last galloot's ashore."

He did it nobly and well, and when the Lee was fairly aground, and a pilot's hand could do no further service in saving the lives of those in his charge, he had the good luck to find his way down a log chain and into the water, whence he reached the land.

Frankfort claims John Stout with more than common pride. He was born and reared in this city, remained here until the outbreak of the war, when he became a soldier in the Second Kentucky, commanded by the gallant Hanson. He was quite young when he entered the army, being now not more than forty-one or two years of age. He is a brother of Mrs. John W. Cannon, widow of the late Capt. Cannon, who built the Lee.

BORN.

At Flemingsburg, Ky., October 3, 1882, to the wife of Mr. J. Will Andrews, a daughter.

A Fight at a Funeral.

A sensational scene occurred to-day at the funeral of Hermance Lenoir, a young French girl who committed suicide Saturday night because her lover refused to marry her. A young Brazilian named Ferrecara Maries had been paying attention to the girl for some time. She loved him passionately, and once before, when her parents refused consent to her marriage with Maries, she attempted to destroy herself. This led them to an agreement to marriage, but on Saturday last Maries told the girl he couldn't keep his promise and wed her. The result was that she took strychnine the same night and died in great agony. She was only sixteen years old, was very pretty, and of irreproachable character. To-day at the funeral in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery, the friends of the family were amazed, when the grave was reached, to see Maries step out of a carriage and approach the coffin and mourners as though to take part in the funeral. This presence of the man who caused his daughter's death so incensed the father of the dead girl that he ordered the intruder to leave. The young man refused, and made a move to draw his pistol, when the father pulled a revolver and began firing. The first shot whizzed dangerously near Maries' head, when the coward turned tail and ran for his life. Lenoir fired five shots, but the fugitive made such good time that he got away unhurt. There was great excitement among the mourners, but the majority excuse the father's action on account of the extreme cowardice and meanness of the young man. The latter is said to be a boot-black who has been masquerading as a capitalist.—San Francisco Dispatch.

Recalling Old Times.

Fourteen years ago, when Chester A. Arthur was a struggling local politician in New York of what is known there as the Custom-house variety, he numbered among his friends the mate of a vessel, named Kennedy, whose influence Arthur had often occasion to use when circumstances required the votes of the floating population of the harbor front.

Just about that time Arthur made an unsuccessful effort to obtain some minor municipal appointment. The mate condescended with his political friend upon his disappointment, and soon after sailed for Washington with a cargo of hardware. While ascending the Potomac a block and tackle fell upon the mate's head, indenting his skull in such a manner that the man became practically an idiot, and was placed in the District of Columbia Insane Asylum. A short time ago the famous surgeon Dr. Gross, of Philadelphia, visited the asylum, examined the case and straightway performed an operation invented by himself, which resulted in the almost immediate return of the patient's reason, the intervening fourteen years being, of course, a complete blank.

A day or two after his recovery, the mate walked out, and began strolling through the Capitol building. Almost the first person he encountered was President Arthur, who was just leaving the Executive chamber in the Senate wing.

"Why, how are you, Kennedy?" said the first citizen, affably extending his hand. "Glad to see you."

"Howdy, old man," said the sailor. "How's things? Got a job yet?"

"Well, I believe I have," said the Executive, with a smile. "A pretty big job, too. You must come up to the White House and see me."

"To the White House?" repeated the amazed mariner.

"Yes, just ask for my private secretary, and he'll show you right in," and the President walked on.

"Poor old Chet!—clean gone, clean gone," mused the mate. "Actually believes himself to be President of the United States. Smart man once, too. That just shows you, gentlemen," he continued, turning to the bystanders, "that just shows you what politics and disappointment will bring a man to. Poor old Chet!"—San Francisco Post.
